By Pam Flemming

Tartar parents found themselves running across campus to avoid receiving tardies during the annual Back-to-School Night, Oct. 7 at 7:30 p.m. Participants followed the schedule of their son or daughter, spending a 12-minute period in each class, where teachers explained the course and outlined requirements.

Reading by patrons of the entire Los Angeles County Public Library system gained nearly six per cent in September, 1964 over the month a year ago to continue a strong, steady growth trend.

The total numbers of books and magazines borrowed during September was 703,353, an increase of 38,823.

Reading gained in each category but most heavily in fiction for children, with an increase of 15,489. By comparison, the total gain for all types of adult reading was 16,795 items.

Federal Tax Collections Climb to New Record High

By REYNOLDS KNIGHT
Though he may never win a popularity contest, the often-mistreated, seldom-welcomed U. S. tax collector has just finished his busiest year.

According to the Internal Revenue service collections of Federal taxes climbed to a record $112 billion for the fiscal year ended June 30, despite the concessions of the tax cut already in effect during the last four months of the fiscal period.

Observers are quick to point out, however, that more of the collections were based on income earned in the last six months of 1963 before the tax cut went into effect. Since the reduction in March, they say, taxes collected actually dropped $800 million per month below the anticipated collections if there had been no tax cut.

This did not deprive the energetic tax taker from piling up his most impressive collection year. The effects of the tax cut cannot be fully measured until after taxes on this year's income are settled next April 15, but experts believe that rising wages, and reduction in refunds due to lower withholding rates, will make another record year for collections.

'RACEHORSE - MULE'
The first American-built main diesel-hydraulic locomotive, developed and produced by Alco Products, Inc., is said to have "the best characteristics of both the racehorse and the mule."

Alco President William F. Lewis made the comparison because "the new diesel-hydraulic can operate at high speed over level terrain and also at sustained low speeds on steep grades." It was explained that the conventional diesel-electric locomotives experience some difficulty in motor heating below certain speeds in sustained operation.

A diesel-hydraulic transmits power from engine to wheels through a hydraulic system, similar to an automobile's automatic transmission. The diesel-electric locomotive transmits power from the engine to a generator, thence to individual axle-mounted electric motors, to the wheels.

The first three of Alco's new diesel-hydraulics will be put into service on the Southern Pacific railroad. Alco, which builds locomotives at Schenectady, N.Y., also introduced the first diesel-electric to the U.S. market in 1924.

UNDERSEA MINING
The prospect of an active undersea mining industry, perhaps at depths of 50 to 200 feet below the surface, has been given the nation by a professor of metallurgy at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Prof. A. M. Gaudin recently told an engineering meeting in New York that development of undersea mining would revolutionize the industry "just as open pit mining has revolutionized (surface) mining in my lifetime."

And what can be mined from the sea? Phosphate, cobalt, manganese and even gold. But, warned another expert, anyone who expects to become a millionaire mining gold from sea water had better guess again. One cubic mile of sea water holds gold valued at only $20,000, or far less than it would cost to mine.

SCIENCE NEWS
The space race is known to be one of the most hotly contested of all contests, yet the current front runner has assumed its lead by virtually standing still. Strange as it seems, the latest communication link between East and West, Syncom III, will occupy a fixed position some 22,000 miles above the intersection of the International Dateline and the Equator. It will maintain this position to transmit the telephone and teletype messages between Asia and this continent, in addition to telecasting the upcoming Tokyo Olympic Games. Scientists report that in order to hold its steady spot, the satellite will have to travel at 6,800 miles per hour, a speed just fast enough to keep it in pace with the more slowly rotating earth below.

Temple Youths Direct Anti-Smoking Campaign

The Senior Youth Group of Temple Menorah has volunteered to direct an anti-smoking campaign to reach teenagers in the area as well as throughout the county through the Southern California Federation of Temple Youth.

The club will distribute posters and pamphlets; encourage schools and youth groups to show the Heart Assn's anti-smoking films and members will even speak to the different teenage organizations.

Clerical duties and help with various local projects will be tackled by the teenagers after school and weekends at the Southwestern branch office of the Los Angeles County Heart Assn., 16811 Hawthorne Blvd.
